

RACE IN SEXUALITY

The Color of LGBT

CSW is pleased to announce that the Faculty Curator for Fall 2008 will be Joseph E. Bristow, Professor, Department of English. According to Professor Bristow, “the proposed cluster of speakers should come under a much more unwieldy title—one that would probably read ‘Intersections between Critical Race Studies, Feminist Theory, and LGBTQI.’ But, in the name of concision, I have decided on a crisper title that addresses the flourishing body of recent scholarship that stands at the point where feminist-oriented studies of gender, analyses of dissident sexuality, and inquiries into race and ethnicity (often uncomfortably) meet. All of the speakers suggested for this cluster have developed pioneering research that examines how race and gender are constitutive components of inordinate desire.” More information on the events in the series will be available on the CSW website this summer.
